Use this form to

- Recharacterize a Traditional IRA contribution to a Roth IRA contribution.
- Recharacterize a Roth IRA contribution to a Traditional IRA contribution.

What you need to know

- Transferring a contribution from one type of IRA to another is known as a "recharacterization." You can recharacterize part or all of your contribution. A recharacterization will not correct an excess contribution.
- Generally, the deadline for recharacterizing an annual IRA contribution is your federal income tax filing deadline for that year, plus extensions (including IRS automatic extensions). If you recharacterize after filing your taxes, you may need to amend your returns. Contact your tax professional for more information.
- A recharacterization cannot be reversed.
- A separate form is required for each recharacterization request.
- Refer to IRS Publication 590-A at irs.gov or consult your tax professional to learn more about recharacterizations.

- Due to market fluctuations, an exact dollar amount of the recharacterization cannot be guaranteed if you elect to move anything other than cash or money market funds.
- For cash recharacterizations, ensure there is enough cash in your account to cover the amount of the recharacterization before submitting this request. The request will not be processed if there are insufficient funds to cover the request.
- For securities recharacterizations, the value of your securities may vary due to market fluctuations and will be determined at the close of business on the transaction date. Only whole shares may be recharacterized unless you note that you want "All" shares recharacterized.
- Any gain attributable to the original contribution must be recharacterized in cash.
